THE CITY OF WILLIAMSBURG

Virginia's Colonial Capital Community Profile

CITY VISION

Williamsburg will become an evermore safe, beautiful, livable city of historic and academic renown, served by a city government – cohesively led, financially strong, always improving – in full partnership with the people who live, work and visit here.

A DISTINCTIVE BEGINNING

In 1699, the General Assembly of Virginia established the City of Williamsburg as the colony's capital. The new city, formerly known as Middle Plantation, was named in honor of King William III and is home to the College of William and Mary established in 1693. In 1722, George I granted a charter incorporating the City of Williamsburg after the fashion of the English municipal borough. During the 1700s, Williamsburg developed into a bustling capital city and played a events leading to American historic role in In 1780, the Capital moved to independence. Richmond and Williamsburg reverted to a quiet college town and rural county seat.

In retrospect, Williamsburg's loss of capital city status was its salvation. Many 18th century buildings survived into the early 20th century when John D. Rockefeller Jr. launched a massive restoration effort creating "Colonial Williamsburg," operated by the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation. The City of Williamsburg celebrated its 300th Anniversary in 1999.

A LIVING HISTORY

Colonial Williamsburg, located in the heart of the City, is the largest outdoor living museum in the United States, covering 301 acres and preserving more than 500 original and reconstructed buildings. Colonial Williamsburg recreates 18th century life, year round, and engages over 700,000 paid visitors annually in the story of America's beginning. Also in the center of the City is America's second oldest university — The College of William & Mary.

Jamestown and Yorktown, the other landmarks in the "Historic Triangle," interpret the first permanent English settlement on Jamestown Island and the Revolutionary War victory at Yorktown.

In March 2004, First Lady Laura Bush designated the City of Williamsburg as a Preserve America community in recognition of its continued preservation of cultural and natural heritage resources.

In 2007, the Historic Triangle area will commemorate the 400th Anniversary of the founding of the Jamestown colony. For more information, visit www.americas400thanniversary.com.

LOCAL ECONOMY

As of April 2005, the total in-city civilian labor force was 4,685, of which 4,357 were employed and 328 were unemployed. The unemployment rate was estimated at 7.0%. The Williamsburg, James City County, and York County civilian labor force was 61,144, and the unemployment rate 3.1%. The City of Williamsburg's economy is largely supported by tourism, education, and health care. The majority of business establishments within the City either fall into the retail trade or accommodation / food services category.

Source: Virginia Electronic Labor Market Access (2005)

In 2003, the Virginia Tourism Corporation reported that the Greater Williamsburg Area was home to five of the top ten attractions most-visited by Virginia travelers, including the number one attraction, the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation.

Due to Williamsburg's close proximity to major metropolitan areas within the Hampton Roads region, residents share a wide variety of occupational and career choices.

The Williamsburg Area Chamber of Commerce has 911 members.

DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATIONS

The City of Williamsburg participates in a number of local and regional economic development associations. The Williamsburg Economic Development Authority (EDA) is a citizen board appointed by the City Council to issue municipal bonds and to advise on economic development issues in the City. Other groups include:

- Crossroads Group, a broad-based coalition including the City, nearby counties, Colonial Williamsburg Foundation, a variety of community groups and businesses, and the College of William & Mary.
- Virginia Economic Development Partnership.
- Hampton Roads Economic Development Alliance.

TAXES

In Virginia, sales tax is collected at both the state and local level. Localities in Virginia receive 1% of the 5% statewide sales tax rate. The remaining 4% of the sales tax is retained at the state level.

Manufacturers pay real estate, machinery and tools, truck and automobile, utility, and sales taxes. Nonmanufacturers pay real estate, tangible personal property, truck and automobile, sales, and utility taxes. They also may pay either a merchant's capital tax or a license tax.

The City of Williamsburg charges various fees for occupational licenses in addition to real estate and personal property taxes.

The Council-Manager Plan:

The City of Williamsburg has operated under the Council-Manager plan since 1932. Under this plan, the governing body is composed of public-spirited citizens serving on a part-time basis to decide major policy issues. Council members serve four-year, staggered terms. The Mayor, who is elected by the City Council, presides over Council meetings and serves as the Chief Elected Official of the City. City Council meets the second Thursday of every month in the Stryker Building in the Municipal Complex.

- Jeanne Zeidler, Mayor (term expires 2006)
- Clyde A. Haulman, Vice-Mayor (term expires 2008)

Strategic Goals and Planning:

Every two years, the City Council identifies strategic goals and objectives for City government. The Biennial Goals and Initiatives provide an expression of City priorities, as specific and measurable as possible, covering a two year period. The 2005/2006 Goals are online at www.williamsburgva.gov/dept/council/goals.pdf. The City's sixth Comprehensive Plan, which outlines the direction of the City's growth and goals for the next five years, was updated in 2005. As guided by the Plan, the City enforces land use and development standards. The 2005 Comprehensive Plan can be found at www.williamsburgva.gov/dept/planning/pdf/cpm.pdf.
